

Project Information:

This Parks & Recreation Master Plan report guides park development and recreation policy for the City of Martinsville over a 10 year span. The approach and process included research and data gathering, study of recreation trends, public input including design workshops set in the parks, and the development of city-wide goals and objectives. The resulting proposal suggests an open-space network and park concepts for each district of Martinsville. The final chapters cover implementation of the master plan, with phasing and funding.

Year Completed: 1998

